COMMENTS

Dr Vines is a great screenwriting teacher who is very knowledgeable and always gives great advice. He is also very funny and keeps the class interesting.

Feedback on scripts was always clear and concise. Criticisms and ideas were extremely helpful in my writing process.

Vines teaches screenwriting practically, without a bunch of boring tests. He encourages us to pursue our ideas without stepping on our creativity. He teaches on a way that prepares us for the real world of screenwriting, I feel.

Providing constructive criticism as well as suggestions after every read of a script is definitely one of the main strengths that helped me improve a lot.

The way he interacts with students and find different ways to make them all better in their own way. He teaches in a way to help every student achieve and succeed. Best professor for any script writing class. NEVER GET RID OF HIM!!

COMMENTS

We got a lot of feedback for our assignments

If you don't believe in yourself he will respectfully disagree with that notion.

He excels in constructive criticism (in a good way). All of his suggestions had me thinking about all of the different ways I can improve upon my script as well as my writing style. His laid-back nature also puts me in a comfortable environment where I am not afraid to voice my opinions and critiques on others' work.

A clearer syllabus and instructions written in an email/on D2L.

Work on your D2L skills.

I think the d2l assugnments could be a little more clear. Better descriptions. Also updated info on d2l in case assignment dates changed from what was said in class.

State the class objectives more clearly.

none

It would be helpful to require/encourage more students to provide feedback to oth er students. Many students in my writing classes seem a little nervous when providing feedback, so including it in partici pation may be a good motivator to get people talking.

I have no critiques for Vines at this time.

More cowbell

While reading scripts is important I would have loved some more discussions about the writing process/scripts in general spending almost every class reading student writing made it hard to find motivati on to show up even if it was needed for each student, would have like an organization t hat allowed for more teaching/lectures with additional student feedback given outside class, peer-reviewed assignments, etc.

I have none.

Professor Vines' greatest strengths are in not only encouraging us to work hard and giving interactive feedback, but also in his turn-in folders did not always match up with the class and discussing the strengths and what could be improved upon was incredibly helpful.

I didn't like the way the one, ongoing assignment was handled. He has extensive experience in the field and his knowledge of the students could've written multiple suggestions.

you gave informative power points and tell fun stories. It's a bit difficult for true beginners to pick up on that's appreciated.

His humor and patience.

Keep up the great work.

Love this crazy man, can't wait to take his class again.

Professor Vines is one of my favorite professors at U I think in general just showing more exa knowledge of what he is doing and knows how to do examples as a part of the course.

He's great at giving feedback. Even if there are huge I thought it was great the way it was. P

Everything, he is the best professor I have ever had.

Nothing, keep teaching the way you do.

Professor Vines makes learning fun. All of his qualities emphasize his ability to pass knowledge to future generations. He is knowledgeable, explanatory, and understanding. Vines, stay cool. I care about the student's well being. I admire how he differentiates between a student's grades and their learning ability to foster individual creativity. He should be recognized for his sensible teaching methods. My classmates refused to format their scripts according to industry standard (no matter how much Vines and their fellow students). Time after time we read through the same poorly written scripts with no improvement. If it were my class, I would wring their necks. They were not even attempting to participate in class). They were wasting everybody's time. Lucky for them, Vines is a much better teacher. I will not give up. Vines has the patience of Job (I respect that).

His ability to make the whole thing very casual (and fun) was the best aspect of this class. He was very kind, very understanding, and incredibly intelligent (em knew how to foster constructive discussion between students about the things we were learning in his class fairly and maybe even a little too leniently (Nothing. I'd like to see more of his own for me personally). He truly cares about the success of his students and doesn't beat around you need to work on and what you've got down. He was even a proponent of letting the student out what was wrong and learn how to spot the issue none he spent a lot of time figuring out how to make his class go smoothly without compromising man because he knew exactly what we should be working towards and how to do it. I would class of his and recommend him tenfold.

Yes, we were assigned a 50 minute class time which is not enough for any creative writing in the subject matter. No constructive comments to offer.

A fifty minute class period is a terrible format for an upper level writing course. I would have appreciated getting scripts back or at least fifteen.

More reminders about due dates. Also I would have appreciated getting scripts back or at least fifteen.

Encouraging. We didn't have enough time to do everything. It would be great if the class period was longer.

2.

There wasn't enough time allotted to get a lot done. Next time this course is taught, there should be more time for writing and feedback.

Professor Vines is a fun professor. He really knows his material inside and out and clearly loves to be just as efficient as writers. His teaching style relies on constant interaction and discussion. He is a clear orator as well as a natural story-teller.

He truly understands the subject and industry. He is honest and isn't afraid to tell you how it is important in this industry. He cares for his students and wants to see us succeed. He helped me today, and I am forever grateful that he has taught me everything he has.

Prof. Vines's strengths include his credibility in the media writing industry and his ability to be down-to-earth, humorous, frank but informative way.

He taught us how to do our assignments before actually assigning them. He never gave us any advice on how to do in class. When he gave notes on our work he was never harsh and was patient and improved upon.

Thought provoking questions

I found this and all of the instructors during the semester. The instructor was willing to work with me to accomplish my content.

He was very honest with his feedback and would go above and beyond what was expected. He was not a professor to hold the students hand, rather let the students have independence.

The instructor cares about the students and about making sure they succeed.

Not really, this is how the field works.
Professor Vines truly cares about the success of his students, and will work with students in his classes.

COMMENTS

He is incredibly funny. He encourages people to be involved in the class.

Funny and very intelligent.

Professor Vines was absolutely amazing. He was very organized and clear with his teaching. He made me look forward to his class and excited to learn. He was very funny and it was extremely easy to pay attention. Professor Vines is a very smart man.

The greatest strengths of Professor Vine's class was is quirkiness in delivering the course content.

Made this course fun. Always looked foward to coming to this class.

Very easy going which helped in learning the material

The instructor encouraged class participation.

Being blunt.

He is very easy to communicate with and is always there to help with any questions or problems!!

His enthusiasm kept the class interesting and I'm glad the choice of movies we watched in class were lesser known (for the most part) because I know I wouldn't watch those movies in my own time.

He gave us the opportunity to discuss as a class about topics. He made it fun and interesting.

Very knowledgeable and presents ideas clearly.

COMMENTS

Dr. Vines is without a doubt the best teacher I have ever had at UNG. He is so passionate about film and is so great at explaining the material. He legitimately had me wanting to change majors. And I still might make the transition to film. He really cares about his students and wants to build up everyone's confidence. He is such a smart and talented teacher.

How practical his teachings were.

Dr. Vines has a lot of experience in screenwriting, and he is very passionate about his work. He wanted all of us to succeed, and was always willing to answer any questions we had.

He teaches practical applications of knowledge, relating what he is teaching to how it will be utilized in a 'real world' scenario. He is well-learned and engaging, and does not coddle students.

I loved his enthusiasm and stories he used to explain his points. It made class more relaxing and interesting.

He's honest about what he expects and is honest about the quality of work that the students are producing.

He is a natural leader and has no issue with keeping the attention of the classroom.

Power point slides for notes during class.

Have the option for animated movies.

Honestly everything was fantastic.

He was able to show me the importance of films in regards of silent films and all others

films. I have always loved watching films and he made it more clear on how I want to be involved in the film industry. The movies he showed were very interesting to w atch.

I am not sure if horror films are allowed but they would be interesting to watch.

There is nothing that I think would improve the course.

none, he is an amazing professor and really shows he loves what he does and tries and gets us students to love it and understand the material as well!!!

Let the weak fall behind .

Professor Vines was absolutely wonderful.

I personally learn better visually (I have more of a photographic memory) so I t hink

maybe a short powerpoint for each lesson would've helped me memorize the material

I feel like I didn't learn anything I couldn't have learned on my own through tri al and error. All his critiques were technical and didn't help me learn how to tweak thi ngs in how I write to make it sound good but short in this format. We also didn't do 90% of the things that were in the syllabus. I would say this was due to the long time spent looking at everyone's scripts. I have been in workshop classes like this in the past and had managed to get twice the amount of work done with 2 short stories and 1 short sho rt
while also having time to edit and critique each other's work. I would suggest fo r his to assign the readings of scripts to be carried out at home then to come in and crit ique. I think things would go a lot quicker and people would have more time to develop th eir writing for this format.

None, he knows what he is doing.

Keep some personal communication with vulnerable or challenged students.
When I first started, the Professor and I didn't have the communication it takes to diminish my anxiety, but that changed after a mediated meeting with the disability's office. Compromise is key.

Makes class interesting even when we have to read out of the book. Fun and goofy teacher. I really great movies, many I had never seen but are now some of my favorites. I like that he always with asking about the movies we watched and our thoughts on it. Felt like we went "through" he picked out and the order they went in. Really liked that we started out with silent films in Professor Vines is a very personable guy. Would defiantly take his class again if I got the chance.

Dr. Vines is awesome. His lectures are always fun and very informative. He's very knowledgeable like I learned a lot from him. I wish we had more professors like him. I appreciate his blunt and sugarcoat anything and we need more professors being that brutally honest with us in this incorrect world.

uses history and personal stories and incorporate that into his teachings. relateable and group further opened my eyes towards film and how to appreciate it.

Professor Vines is so down to earth and not afraid to be weird and honest with everyone. His reality... You are able to retain so much information and learn so much without even noticing to class, watch movies, and learn about the things in film that usually go unnoticed. He is a SO MAD if he ever left UNG. He can improve and change the lives of many kids my age in cc

Nothing. He is amazing. He teaches very well. Because he has had experience in the industry, the anecdotes that Prof. Vines includes in his class help to provide an authentic account of how things operate. I feel he did a great job with thorough explanations and provided his own experience. The class is straight-forward, the assignments are clear, and his class could be improved.

COMMENTS

It was very interesting to listen to when I have no constructive comments to give because I think he shares about his struggles in working on the types of assignments he gave back when he was needed in the course.

This is a creative course of study in a very creative field.
It was great and it was encouraging to all students that he drew upon his background and experience in the field to offer creative assignments and a variety of assignments for the completion of those assignments.

I thought the course went smoothly.

He is passionate and knowledgeable about what he was teaching.

I am not a fan of taking tests and quizzes outside of class. Something always seems to go wrong. If the router goes out, somehow the internet....
